

New Zealand Cartridge Collectors Club

The New Zealand Cartridge Collectors Club was formed in 1961 by a group of about a dozen people interested in fostering the hobby of cartridge collecting. Since then the club has grown to a membership of over 200, including about 50 members in a wide number of overseas countries. The club has contact with other similar clubs throughout the United States, Britain, South Africa, Australia, Spain, Canada and Europe, and is affiliated to the International Cartridge Collectors Association.

Club rules are few, and it operates on a minimum of formality. Gatherings are held several times each year, where collectors buy, sell, trade or swap cartridges to build up their own collections. More senior club members have collections of up to 10,000 or more individual different cartridges. Collections vary - some members collect only military ammunition, some just British sporting rounds, rimfire or pistol and revolver cartridges while others specialise in shotshells. Many collect packets - full or empty - and other items of militaria. The club publishes a bi-monthly bulletin, giving details of new, rare, old, odd or unusual cartridges, answers questions from club members, and keeps members in touch with club activities.

At least once a year the club holds an auction of a wide variety of cartridges offered for sale by individual members. Bids are restricted to club members only, and can be made either as mail bids or bids from the floor during the meeting.

Subscriptions are $45 per year for N.Z. and overseas members, plus a one-off joining fee of $10. Another option is "electronic membership" to receive the bulletin by email. The bulletin is typically 5 to 10MB. The reduced subscription for this option is $15 per year regardless of country of origin. "Electronic" members have all other rights of membership except that they do not receive a printed bulletin. Members who pay to receive posted bulletin can choose to receive an emailed copy at no extra charge.
